CGA investigates unauthorized access to its online gaming portal

Willemstad, September 17, 2026

The Curaçao Gaming Authority (CGA) has identified unauthorized access to its online gaming portal. The unauthorized access has been contained and the source of the access has been identified.

Upon detection of the incident, the CGA and its service provider immediately activated their incident response procedures and its provider commenced a forensic investigation to determine what happened.

While the unauthorized access has been contained, the investigation remains ongoing and has not yet established the full scope of the incident. The CGA is currently assessing whether and which information was accessed, as well as the potential consequences arising from such access.

At this stage, the investigation has not identified any compromise of the Authority's core technical infrastructure. However, given the nature of the information held by CGA, it would be premature to draw conclusions regarding the overall impact of the incident. The CGA is treating this matter with the utmost seriousness and has implemented additional monitoring and security measures as a precaution while investigative efforts continue.

The Authority is working to establish all relevant facts and will take any further action that may be warranted based on the findings of the investigation. Where the investigation determines that information relating to individuals, applicants, licensees, or other stakeholders may have been affected, those parties will be notified directly and in accordance with applicable legal and regulatory requirements.

The CGA recognizes the concern that this incident may cause and remains committed to transparency throughout this process. Further updates will be provided as appropriate as additional facts are established. As the matter remains subject to investigation and engagement with the relevant authorities, no further details can be disclosed at this time.
